DÖNITZ, Admiral

German submarine losses have been high and the German Navy is decidedly annoyed; Dönitz is directing a new strategy, which he is said to have invented, in order to save his reputation; some observers feel that he has lost confidence in the submarine as a weapon / is not liked by the Navy; they say he owes his place to Nazi Party affiliation and to the friendship of HIMMLER.

For many years General Director of Railroads; as a leading administrator of the German iron and coal industry he was one of the most powerful men in Germany and played an important behind-the-scenes political role; Hitler has never forgotten that the Kapp Putsch failed in 1918 largely through the railroad strike, and is therefore aware of Dorpmüller's power / between 1927-29 there were repeated bad railroad accidents in Bavaria which gave rise to much criticism of the railroad administrator and even to the boycotting of the Munich-Berlin express; Dorpmüller came down to Munich to try and appease the public and it was then that his intimate collaboration with Hitler began / Hitler persuaded him to fill the ranks of railroad workers and officials with Nazis, and rewarded him by eventually making him Transport Minister / between
